- Some colleges also require SAT II scores.
- For AFROTC medical questions, call the Department of Defense Medical Examination Review Board (DODMERB) at 1-719-333-3562 and ask for an Air Force technician. For a waiver, ask the staff of a desired AFROTC detachment.
- For more info, surf www.airforce.com.

- The Air Force is looking for leaders. It is the student's responsibility to show initiative and take the proper actions to ensure the completion of each step of the scholarship process.
- Colleges and AFROTC detachments often have a web site for a virtual campus tour, and many schools and public libraries offer internet access. For personal guidance, call them.

College Scholarship Program (CSP) 4- and 3-year scholarships for high school students:

- Type I 4-year Full tuition all four years to the qualifying college of the student's choice.
Type II 4- & 3-year Up to $15,000 per year to the qualifying college of the student's choice.
(3-year Type II scholarships require 4 years of AFROTC enrollment and pay beginning the sophomore year.)

Type VII 4-year Full tuition all four years to the qualifying college of Air Force choice.

A qualifying college offers the student's academic major and access to AFROTC and has admitted the student to the college. In addition to the tuition, all three scholarship types also pay $480 per year for books plus $150 per month spending allowance. AFROTC does not pay directly for housing or meals.

To be eligible for a Type I, II, or VII scholarship, the student must:

- have a high school minimum cumulative grade point average of at least 2.5 (when A = 4.0).
- be in the top 40% of his or her high school class.
- not have any full-time college student credit except for joint high school/college programs.
- have at least these minimum college entrance exam scores:

SAT I

ACT

Total	1100	Composite	24
Math	520	Math	21
Verbal	530	English	21

- be a U.S. citizen by 31 October of the year entering college.
- be at least 17 years of age by 31 October of the year entering college.
- not be married to a military member or a military cadet.
- not be a single parent with legal child custody.
- complete the Applicant Fitness Test (AFT) prior to the AFROTC interview, NLT mid-Jan of h. s. senior yr.
- meet USAF weight-to-height standards no later than last day of freshman fall term (4-year scholarships).
- pass the Physical Fitness Test (PFT) no later than last day of freshman fall term (4-year scholarships).
- pass the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test (AFOQT) no later than Day 1 of the sophomore year.
- be less than 27 years of age as of 30 June the year graduating college (except with prior military service).

Scholarship Actions Program (SAP) for college students with 3 or 2 years of full-time status remaining:

- Identical to the Type II Scholarship shown above except these are the only academic requirements:

Technical majors	Above 2.65 Cumulative GPA and 2.35 Term GPA.
Nontechnical majors	Above 2.65 Cumulative GPA and 2.35 Term GPA.
Premedical majors	Above 3.65 Cumulative GPA for 3-year, 3.50 Cumulative GPA for 2-year.

Professional Officer Course Incentive (POCI) 2- or 1-year aid for nonscholarship AFROTC Jrs and Srs:

- $3,000 per year for tuition and lab fees plus $450 for books and $150 per month spending allowance.
- Must have maintained a minimum 2.35 grade point average every college term with no Fs.
- Same age requirement as Type I, II and VII scholarships above. • All academic majors are eligible.

Possible college incentive: some colleges offer additional financial subsidies to Air Force ROTC cadets.

For more info, surf www.afloats.af.mil/opportunities/subsidy/subsidy.htm

Note: A scholarship is not required to participate in AFROTC— any qualifying student can enroll.

Candidates interview with an AFROTC detachment or an ALO

Candidates get their physical exam and the examining doctor sends the results to DODMERB

Candidates select a qualifying college and mail a copy of their college Letter of Admission to AFROTC HQ no later than 1 May

Candidates enroll in selected
AFROTC-endorsing college

Scholarships are awarded on a needs-of-the-Air Force, best-qualified basis. Selection is based on student merit; financial status has no bearing on the selection process.

Current scholarship priorities by academic major are:

1. Meteorology and Electrical Engineering (25% of scholarships awarded)
 2. Math, Science, other Engineering and technical majors (50% of scholarships awarded)
 3. Nontechnical majors, especially foreign languages and area studies (25% of scholarships awarded)
- Students may apply for any academic major(s).
 - When choosing major preference(s), students should pursue what they want— not what they don't really want!

Note: Students who have applied to the Air Force Academy, and indicated an interest in AFROTC on the Academy application, must still apply separately to AFROTC no later than 1 Dec .

Air Force enlisted members can find more info in AFI 36-2013.
